Forecast for Tuesday 14 Dec 2021

Weather: Rather cloudy across southwestern hills with a few spots of drizzle, otherwise dry with clear spells overnight. A largely dry and bright day is expected, although southwestern hills look cloudier with, at first, a few spots of drizzle, but elsewhere there will be some good spells of sunshine. Cloud increasing through the evening bringing a risk of patchy drizzle.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 600m: Little chance across southwestern hills, but around 75% elsewhere, but chances here falling during the evening.

Visibility: Periods or persistent cloud above 300-450m across the southwest, but cloud more occasional above about 600m elsewhere. Away from cloud visibility good or very good falling to several kilometres in drizzle.
